definitely and decidedly the great need for such playgrounds. Where the chil-dren played in the streets and gutters, in constant danger from the heavy traffic on North Main street, and even greater danger from the dirt and dust they were ever inhaling from these streets, they were given an opportunity to play in a large, clean, grassy plot. The alacrity with which they accepted this chance would have con-vinced even the most sceptical that here was a thing that was being thor-oughly used and enjoyed by the little ones. The attendance has been large, steadily increasing day by day. There were always some waiting for swings or seesaws, while the sand boxes were also the scene of great building plans by the smaller ones. Almost daily baseball games or races or something

IN NORWICH 67 YEARS AGO MISSIGNARY SOCIETY Meeting Held with Mrs. O. B. Leffing-Venerable Resident of Westerly Still well with Several Readings on at His Trade. Mount Lawn. The Boston Post of Sunday had an article on Blacksmith York of West-erly, who began his life work 67 years ago as an apprentice to a blacksmith ago as an apprentice to a blacksmith in the town of Norwich.

The changing methods in blacksmithing in the past half century, the expansion of business and the enlargement of shops have all passed Mr. York by.

He has been content to stay on the little corner in the heart of Westerly's residence district and live by the little trade that furnished him with his only desire—a livelihood.

horse shod, a tire reset or an imple-ment of the farm forged.

Long experience and long residence would have been enough to bring the gray bearded, quiet spoken little man business that might have made him wealth. But he has never cared enough about success of that sort to employ an assistant. The shop has at all times furnished living for himself and his wife, and both have always steadfastly elected to enjoy life in a peaceful, moderate way in preference to the uncertainties and changes of greater success. But despite the fact that the life of the old workman has been so uneventthe old workman has been so uneventful and quiet, he is one who believes in work and who wants to "die with his boots on and in harness." His philosophy of life shows this:

"It was just 67 years ago that I made my start in the blacksmithing trade over in Norwich, near here.

"I began as assistant to a man who was well established there, and before long I had learned the ins and outs of long I had learned the ins and outs of the business. Seven years later I was ready to branch out for myself. "I moved over to Westerly, and built the little house that we still live in and back of it a sort of half barn and shop. The house was a pretty pretentious affair in those days, and we felt as if we were right in style.
